

Week 15 — THE DESIGN SHEET · Class Text Adventure

Designers (your names): _____ Room #: _____

This paper is source code. Whatever you write here, the computer will say next week. Write like the whole class will read it out loud — because it will.

1 · Theme vote tally

Haunted school	Space station	Mystery island	Time-travel mall	Write-in: _____

Winner: _____

2 · The map (copy it from the board)

Draw the class map: number the boxes 1-5, arrows for choices, double-box the endings.

		ENDING:

3 · Your room (the part your group owns)

Room name: _____

What the player sees (2 sentences — set the scene, plant the choice):

Choice A (what the player can do): _____

→ leads to (a numbered room or an ending): ____

Choice B: _____

→ leads to: ____

4 · Endings box (only if your group owns an ending)

Is it the WIN or the LOSE ending? (circle one) · What happens (2 sentences):

Storyteller rules (the only three)

1. School-appropriate. Your principal is a possible player.
2. Funny beats gory. "Detention... FOREVER" is scarier than anything with slime in it.
3. Dead ends need a reason. Every arrow must point at a real room or ending — an arrow to nowhere is a bug, and we fix bugs on paper, where it's cheap.

Brain teaser (optional — take it home)

Design a SECRET BONUS ROOM. A room the map doesn't show: how do players find it (a hidden third choice? a password?), what's inside, and where does it lead? Same sheet format, same three rules. The best secret room gets built into the game next week — with the designers' names in the credits.
